

HOLDS UP GRAY HEAD, DENYING CRIME OF CAIN

VETERAN OF MORGAN'S COMMAND CHARGED WITH OCTOGENARIAN BROTHER ASSASSINATION—THIRST FOR INHERITANCE THE ALLEGED MOTIVE FOR TRAGEDY IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

"YOU DON'T BELIEVE THAT I KILLED MY BROTHER, DO YOU?"

WM. YORK.

"Could one of Morgan's men, who has faced death in so many forms on many a field of frenzied fight, turn pale now at the thought of death?" says Wm. York, 77, as he looks his questioner firmly in the eye through the bars of the Jefferson county, Kentucky, jail, whither he was removed for safe keeping after being charged with his aged brother's assassination near Lawrenceburg, says a Louisville dispatch. Bravely he holds up his head under the charge of the cowardly crime of Cain, this man of over three score and ten. Then in the silence of his cell at night, he weakly languishes and weeps over his disgrace. Physicians say he will never come to trial; that he is feeble unto death. At home opinion is divided upon his guilt. Many, shutting their eyes to circumstances, accept his word completely that he is innocent. "God knows," he says, "that I could not stain these hands with the blood of my own brother. What did I care for his money? My allotted time on earth has passed. But a few months—maybe a year—and then I go down into the grave."

Yet money is the motive that it is alleged caused the murder, hope of a fortune on the bring of the grave, a fortune that he could at least leave his children.

The victim of the tragedy, James York, 86, lay asleep in the innocence of old age, when someone emptied the old man's own shotgun into his brain. Feeling his days numbered he had just planned to divide his wealth among his nephews and nieces. In case of death before he could accomplish this, his brothers as next of kin would receive this wealth. It was alleged that the old Morgan raider sought to take advantage of this.

Wm. York was in call of the house soon after the murder, but declares he had been all day at a county fair with his son-in-law. His arrest was not decided upon until two days after his brother's death. He appeared dumbfounded at the charge. In jail the patriarch has the sympathy of the other prisoners who are showing marked attention and pity.

"The only legacy I wanted for my children," he says, "was that they could say at my bier, 'He was a good father, and no act of his ever tarnished the name that he gave us.'"

BRADLEY OPERATING SOUTHERN MINES

A Former Telegraph Operator of This City in Charge of Mines.

ADVOCATES DRILLING CONTEST

W. L. Bradley, who was the press taker at the local Western Union Telegraph office a few years ago, in a letter to the business manager of The Citizen, gives some interesting mining news about southern New Mexico. The letter is dated from Deming and the following extracts are used:

"The company whom I sold the property to, is doing a little primary work, but will commence full force, about the 15th of September. This mine will be under my charge, and I expect good results. I have studied the proposition closely and believe that if I am able to carry out my plans, it will prove one of New Mexico's big producers."

"Mining activity is on a fast increase in New Mexico, probably not noticeably inasmuch as all the new work is not concentrated in one camp, but as a whole 'tis better than I ever knew. Mining machinery is coming in over all routes, and not only old abandoned mines are being revived, but new ground in all parts of the territory is being prospected and developed. The old 'Quadrangle' has eastern investors by reason of wrong impressions that New Mexico's veins had no depth, has been lifted by actual proof, and there, now, seems to be an abundance of capital for the district if sought out."

"Territorial Fair Booster. 'El Pasaños have already begun to talk about the fair, and from the interest manifested, you'll no doubt have a good attendance from here."

"I have been talking with some mining men about conferring with the fair managers, with a view of adding a drilling contest to the list of features at the Albuquerque fair, and we think that if it could be arranged, agreeably, it would add nicely to the attractions. There are plenty of extra good hand drill men in New Mexico, and while its a little too late to round them up and get in training for this year, it can easily be done for next year. It was thought, too, that Albuquerque would be a good mutual meeting ground for New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado record drillers and it would not only attract lots of mining men and miners from other states but it would help greatly to advertise New Mexico as a mining territory."

"Sincerely hope you had a pleasant time during your trip east, and if I am not absolutely 'tied up' at the mine, will see you during the fair. 'With kindest regards, I am 'Very truly yours, 'W. L. BRADLEY.'"

MURDER REPORTED FROM ACME CAMP

The other evening at Acme, Arizona, John Fitzpatrick shot and killed James Stevenson. The dead man was foreman at the Gold Road mine, and while in that capacity, John Fitzpatrick had worked for him. Fitzpatrick had arisen, causes for which seem to have been of a personal nature. They had fought it out once before the killing, but the result was not satisfactory to the defeated man. The exact particulars of the shooting cannot be learned as there were no witnesses to the shooting. The defendant was held under $2,500 bail on a charge of murder. It seems on the surface to be a case of looking for each other and the best man win. They had fought once and were not satisfied. One is dead and the other is in jail on a very serious charge. To the sensible minded people, the degree of satisfaction gained is beyond understanding.

Pleasantly Effective.
Never in the way, no trouble to carry, easy to take, pleasant and never failing in results are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. These famous little pills are a certain guarantee against headache, biliousness, torpid liver and all of the ills resulting from constipation. They tone and strengthen the liver, cure jaundice. Sold by all druggists.

Galas, unlawfully interfering with voter; Territory, appellee, vs. Van Miller, appellant.

A Touching Story.
Is the moving from death of the baby girl of Geo. A. Kyles, Cumberland, Md. He writes: "At the age of 11 months our little girl was in declining health. She had a cough and cold, and two physicians gave her up. We were almost in despair, when we resolved to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. The first bottle gave relief; after taking four bottles she was cured and is now in perfect health. Never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. At all dealers; 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed.
